"The Cradle of the Cockade"
HOMECOMING WEEK

Upon entering the Petersburg area, one is aware of the significant role that history plays in this community. The Court House, symbolic of the liberty and justice our nation enjoys, welcomes all visitors with its tolling bell. However, this freedom was not easily obtained. Sons of Petersburg aided in the defense of their country whenever a crisis endangering freedom arose. They died for their city and state, their country, their cause, and for us, their descendants.

The military tradition of Petersburg was epitomized by the company of 103 men led by Captain Richard McRae in the War of 1812. After having drilled on Poplar Lawn, the Petersburg Volunteers left town from Centre Hill bearing a flag presented to them by the ladies of the city. In Richmond they received acclaim and left the capital with drums beating and colors flying. However, when they reached the front, they had to endure the hardships and suffering of a war. Serving under General William Henry Harrison, they helped regain the Northwest Territory. They won fame at the seige and were the heroes of the battle of Fort Meigs. After serving the time of their enlistment they were dismissed with General Orders which read in part: "They have, for twelve months, borne the hardships and privations of military life in the midst of an inhospitable wilderness, with a cheerfulness and alacrity which has never been surpassed. Their conduct in the field has been excelled by no other corps . . ." While reviewing the Volunteers on their return, President James Madison referred to Petersburg as the "Cockade City of the Union" because of their fashionable cockade hats. This soubriquet which these volunteers won for Petersburg has been cherished to this day. The Cockade Hat has become a symbol of bravery and determination to keep our country truly "the land of the free and the home of the brave." One of the city's most noted memorials is a shaft over the grave of Captain McRae in Blandford Cemetery honoring those who fought so well in the War of 1812.

These soldiers are remembered because they did not falter in the face of danger. Their goal was to create a better world in which to live and they were willing to make necessary sacrifices to attain it. These determined fighters set out "strong in will, to strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

Bravery, Patriotism

In addressing the Petersburg Volunteers, General William Henry Harrison referred to our city as "the seed-bed of patriotism, the nursery of heroes." He truly spoke not only of the Petersburg of his time but also of the actions of her sons during the longest military campaign ever waged against a city in the United States.

On June 9, 1864 the first Union attack on Petersburg was made and the long seige began. Ironically, the day dawned bright and beautiful, little foretelling the dark shadows that would fall over the homes of Petersburg. Although it was a relatively small battle, the result was of utmost importance, for if the Union had been able to take and hold the city, Richmond's railroad connection with the South would have been cut.

Frantically trying to preserve the ideals in which they so devoutly believed, the Second Class Militia, those either too old or too young to fight, heroically joined the struggle for a cause which had ceased to be discriminating about a man's age. Also among these defenders were persons from the hospitals and jails dubbed "the patients and the penitents."

Armed with inferior muskets and rifles, this gallant band, under the leadership of Major Fletcher H. Archer, bravely held off two attacks and retreated only when the third made further resistance impossible unless all were to be captured or killed. So hopelessly outnumbered, Petersburg's garrisons were defeated. In the still, warm June evening ambulances delivered the dead to the doors of their homes. Even the Union General Benjamin F. Butler, known by the nickname "Beast" because of his ruthless cruelty, gave testimony that Petersburg was defended by "old men and boys, the grave and the cradle being robbed in about equal proportions." The Battle of the Crater and further attacks brought an eventual end of Petersburg's protection and ultimately, the Confederacy. Though defeated, these men had fought bravely for those ideals in which they believed.

Petersburg Plays Role in Twentieth Century Wars

Petersburg also played an important role in our twentieth century wars. Her first troops in World War I were in the 80th Division, a group composed largely of Virginians and Pennsylvanians. Now the united North and South were fighting a common enemy on foreign soil. Camp Lee, outside of the city, became the mobilization sight for the Virginia National Guard. World War II brought a re-opening of Camp Lee which soon became Fort Lee, a permanent Army post. Men from all over the country were stationed here to prepare them for fighting abroad. Petersburg was honored to produce two brothers holding the rank of general. These two leaders, Brigadier General Lee Saunders Gerow and four star General Leonard Townsend Gerow, brought great fame to their native city. Eighty-nine Petersburg men gave the ultimate, their lives, to suppress the enemy. When Korea asked for help, our city once again responded by giving her men for the cause of freedom.

Throughout the years, Petersburg's participation in wars has not only been in the form of giving her soldiers but also in group efforts to build morale among the troops. Various churches and civic organizations began entertaining the thousands of young men stationed at the nearby Army base. Other organizations knitted clothing, made bandages, and raised money for those troops abroad. Individuals on the home front aided their country by contributing to scrap drives or serving as wardens and supervisors in blackouts. Together and individually Petersburgers did their part to win the wars. Facts and figures combine to show that the Cockade City has maintained her reputation for active patriotism in the twentieth century which had been won in previous conflicts.

Dedicated Teachers Give

When art student Reid Pierce needs more instruction about shading his valentine, Mrs. Musgrove readily comes to his aid.

"Behold, I do not give lectures or a little charity,

When I give I give myself."

Walt Whitman

No two teachers could possibly possess as much vitality, enthusiasm, and true dedication to their profession as do Mrs. Lou Musgrove and Mrs. Grace Edwards. Through different means they try to instill within their students a love of the fine arts. While working independently of one another, they strive for a common goal—to provide PHS with a cultural environment.

As our art teacher, Mrs. Musgrove, who attended the College of William and Mary, teaches her pupils how to capture a scene on canvas as a permanent beauty. She also conveys the even more important lesson of observing life rather than merely seeing it. Sponsoring the Art Club, Mrs. Musgrove is responsible for guiding various projects and activities. She supervises the production of posters for all school functions and the painting of the scenery for the annual musical. Because of her constant devotion and motherly advice, she has won the title of "Mama Lou" by all of her students.

Our choral music teacher, Mrs. Edwards, seeks to show students the art of expressing themselves in song. Although she recently received her master's degree in music education, she possesses a knowledge that far extends the bounds of any formal training. She not only teaches the rudiments of singing but also a deep appreciation of music itself. In addition to sponsoring the Glee Club, she also heads the Pro Musica Ensemble and the Girls' Ensemble. Annually, she directs the spring musical which has always proved to be a great success. Because of her sincere interest in each individual, "Mother Edwards" has won the admiration of all students.

Both Mrs. Musgrove and Mrs. Edwards center their lives around PHS. They generously give of their time and talents—often found working at school on Saturdays or late afternoons. Yet these admirable ladies are so humble and understanding. Although capable of big accomplishments, they are still appreciative of the little things in life. They are willing to help at any time, always putting their own wants and desires last. Though busy, they are never too hurried to take the time to greet all kindly and give a word of encouragement to those striving to excel. These two teachers love all people and yet have not lost the personal touch of affection for each individual.

Often working behind the scenes, neither has won valuable awards or trophies but both have won the respect, admiration, and love of their students and the personal satisfaction of knowing that they have accomplished their major goal in life.

As a small token of our sincere gratitude and appreciation, we, the Missile staff of 1969, dedicate this annual to those who have dedicated their lives to faithful and devoted service to our school and community, Mrs. Lou Musgrove and Mrs. Grace Edwards.

Mrs. Edwards shows her students that the shape of one's mouth is quite important in producing a good tone.

Rehearsals for the Pops Concert are long and tiring for Mrs. Edwards as well as her Glee Club.

During her "free" time, Mrs. Edwards is often found practicing at the piano.

BUT STRONG IN WILL . . .

ACADEMICS

Being the real purpose of all educational institutions, learning plays an important role in the life of a student. With our dedicated faculty and the well-rounded curriculum with which our students are faced, one is able to prepare to move onto a college campus or into a business career. It is this excellent curriculum which enables today's students to become the well-informed adults of tomorrow.

To reap the benefits of a good education, one must possess an earnest desire to learn, initially instilled in him by his teachers. One must be eager to find answers to all questions, solutions to all problems. As the wearer of the Cockade Hat was determined in his fight for freedom, the student also must be determined in his quest for knowledge. "Strong in will," the individual endlessly searches for the truth, seeking to find answers to all problems which our world encounters.

Problem . . .

Edwin M. Betts, Authority in Administration

FAMOUS RINGS BY BALFOUR WORLD-FAMOUS RINGMAKER
1968
AUGUST

An integral part of the administrative staff, Robert Churn often finds his phone ringing and his desk cluttered.

Serving as the nucleus of all school activity is the main office. Supervised by our principal, Mr. Edwin M. Betts, Jr., and our assistant principal, Mr. Robert G. Churn, this office is the administrative headquarters for the entire school. Here decisions are made on the official level which affect student life at PHS.

Pre-registration of students and computer scheduling were the main objectives of the administration this year. Throughout last spring and during the summer months, administrators and assistants worked long hours, delving into the stacks of student schedule preferences. In late August the rewards of toil were realized as the data which had been sent away to the computer were returned—in schedule form. This provided for a pre-registration period before the semester actually began. When the citizens of PHS returned, a new, well organized system awaited them.

Smooth operation of the school depends greatly on the office secretaries. They keep attendance records, type absentee lists, process report cards, assist in administrative correspondence, and prepare transcripts for students making college applications. Aiding both teachers and students, the secretaries are a vital and welcome addition to the staff.

Seeking new ways of improvement is the constant thought of our able administrators. To their initiative and leadership we owe much of the credit for the superb standing of our school.

Secretaries Mrs. Gloria Crowson, Miss Patricia Brown, Miss Doris Curlin, Miss Nancy Prichard, and Mrs. Judy Pond keep the office running smoothly and efficiently.

Edwin Betts congratulates a beaming Robert Churn on having set a good example for the litter campaign at PHS.

English Emphasizes Creativity, Communication

Eating lunch in the planning room, Herbert Kimmel entertains Mrs. Mary Ridgway, Miss Helen Haynie, and Miss Nancy Bowles with his memorable war stories.

Aiding the students in developing creative thinking and an efficient basis for communication, the English department of PHS has maintained its high standards and reputation of excellence. Teachers work successfully to enlighten their students concerning the difficulties as well as the enjoyment of studying the English language. Beginning with the fundamentals of grammar and writing, students then proceed to study various literary techniques and finally approach the field of American and English literature. Here, they must encounter poetry and deep literary works such as Chaucer's Canterbury Tales and Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter, developing an ability to interpret underlying meaning conveyed by such techniques as symbolism and irony.

The student is required to take English for five terms in an effort to expand his ability to exchange both knowledge and ideas in our incessantly expanding world. Venturing from the required courses, one may participate in speech classes and special reading courses designed to further stimulate communication and comprehension. Thus, all facets of the English department work toward the common goal of developing skills in what is probably the most important subject met outside the classroom.

ENGLISH OFFICE
Besides providing a storage room for equipment, the English office is also a planning period haven for Miss Kathy Shelton, Mrs. Frances Sublett, and Mrs. Ann Abernathy.

Grading papers is a full time job Mrs. Beverly Donovan discovers as she prepares to read another stack of book reports.

Unable to find a willing student, Mrs. June Smallwood delivers the morning report herself to the sympathetic Mrs. Mary Best in the attendance office.

Librarians, Mrs. Rhea Dodge and Mrs. Thelma Douthat, discuss a forthcoming library project with English teacher Mrs. Joan Baggett.

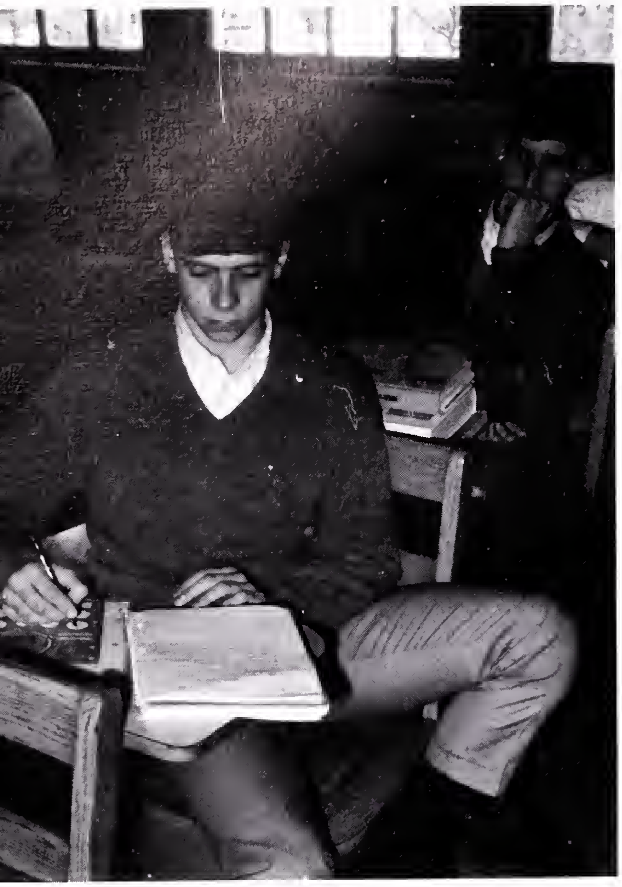
During intermission, Miss Frances Morgan, Mrs. Shirley Willcox, and Miss Elizabeth Lanier comment on the Leider concert being presented by Mrs. Grace Edwards.

Dougie Fisher utilizes activities period to complete his geometry homework.



The math office is an ideal place for Burton Alexander and Mrs. Helen Cover to discuss plans for next year's courses.

Algebra teachers, Mrs. Doris Young and Mrs. Winifred Rogers, take time from their busy schedules to stop by the mailboxes to pick up important notices.

After school, coaches Bob Kilbourne and Bob Tyler demonstrate how they became football stars.

Confidence Conducive to Mastering Mathematics

Faculty hall supervisors, Miss Hayden Gwaltney and Miss Ellen Moyer, convince Ricky Turnamian, Steve Russell, and Gillie Harrison that they should stay on the porch with everyone else.

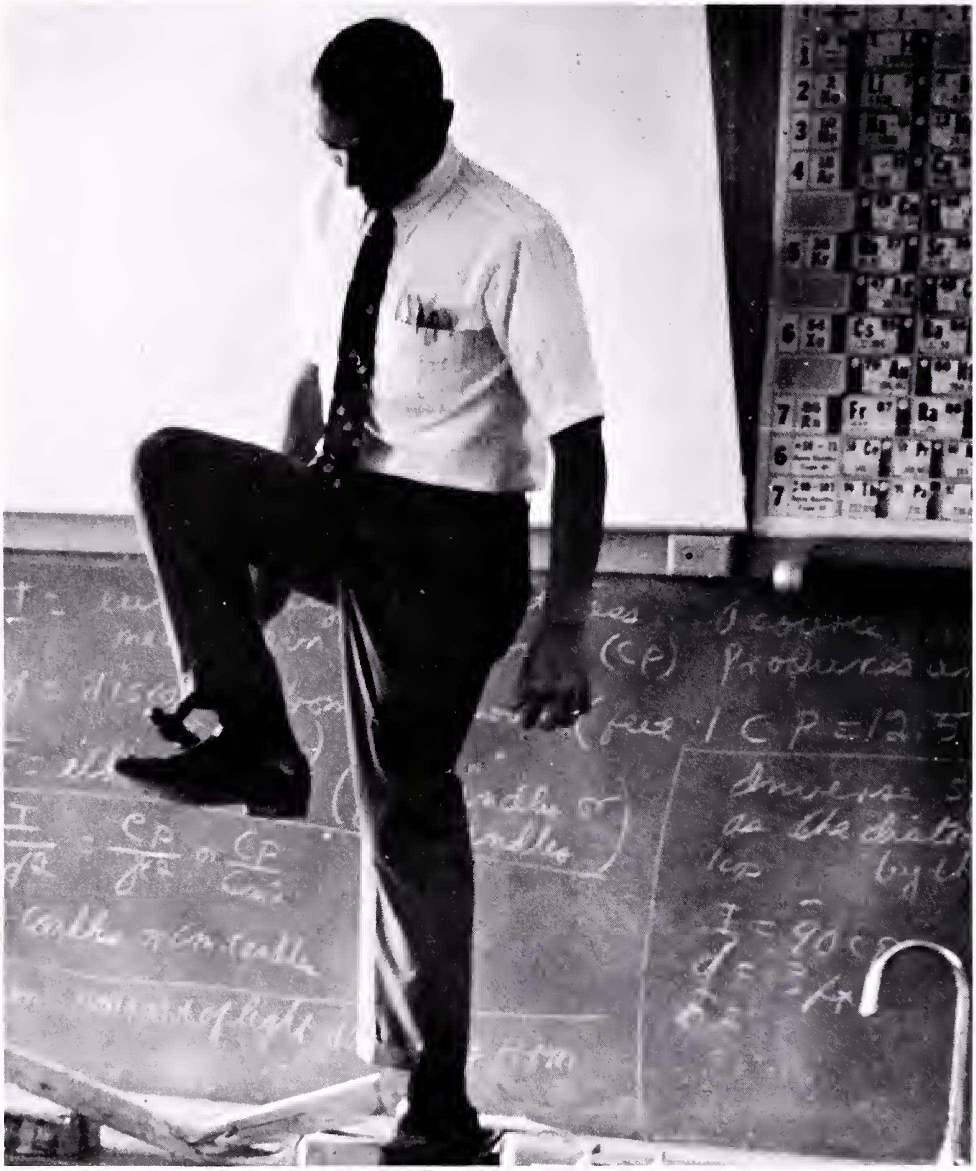
Proving that chivalry has not become completely obsolete, Mike Floyd helps Mrs. Betty Cowden out of her car.

From the study of simple addition to the most involved theories of calculus, the math department endeavors to provide the student with confidence in his ability. Stressing comprehension of the significance of each mathematical law, but by no means sacrificing accuracy, every level of math reaffirms the principles learned earlier.

After a review of basic arithmetic, the freshman may choose a math curriculum which will prepare him for the calculations necessary in the business world or the measuring abilities required in the manual skills. A third alternative, algebra, formulates the background needed to master geometry, providing the essentials conducive to higher math on both the scholastic and collegiate levels.

As today's modern world is rapidly increasing in complexity, so must our math department strengthen the program offered to compete with this progression. Teachers are constantly seeking more informative methods to aid the student in receiving the most complete understanding that his ability will allow him.

Showing his great dedication to the teaching profession, Jimmy Sublett goes to any extreme to demonstrate parallel forces.



Being animal lovers at heart, Mrs. Elizabeth Rice and Miss Jean Lynn care for their classroom pets.

Using a model airplane, Reese Tucker attempts to explain the aspects of the modern space age to Mrs. Ruth Gleason.

With a disgusted look Mrs. Mildred Dupriest accuses David Gammon of using all of her sodium hydroxide.

The close relationship between magnetism and gravity can be proved by this physics experiment, showing an electron beam being diverted by a magnetic field.

Science Demands Ability and Maturity

To better facilitate an accurate interpretation of reality, the science department of PHS endeavors to educate the student through sequential courses. With a basic knowledge gained, one becomes better acquainted with his environment and may be able to progress more successfully in it. Introducing individuals to the ultimate values of science, a carefully planned classroom program demands of students both ability and maturity.

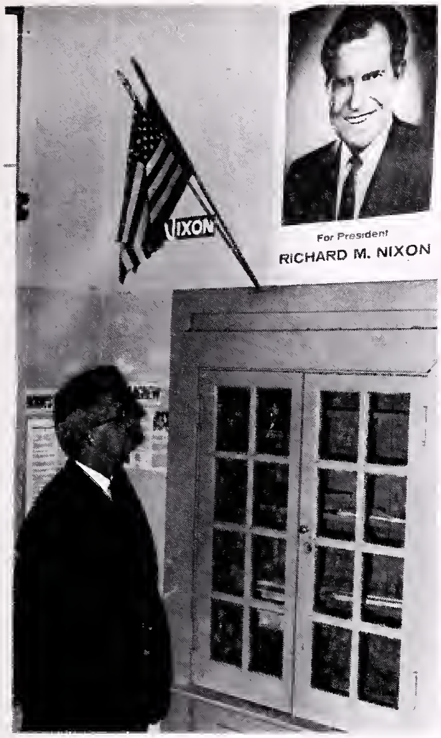
Elementary biology and physical science, taken in the early years of the high school career, familiarize pupils with the concepts and techniques to be used throughout high school and later in college. A more extensive investigation of the marvels of life from the hydra to human reproduction is offered in sophomore biology. Students who desire to continue their scientific studies may do so by electing advanced biology. This course provides the student with almost complete independence in investigation and experimentation. In chemistry one may attain academic success by seeking a full understanding on his own. Individual and group experiments are essential not only in chemistry but also in physics. Testing the pupils' knowledge and ability, physics culminates the science curriculum.

Miss Kay Ownby readily assures a wary Mrs. Mary Harvey that the bottle does not contain poison.

Missile editors, Gail Tobias and Kandy Kahl, discuss their trip to Columbia with Mrs. Earlene Lampman, their sponsor.

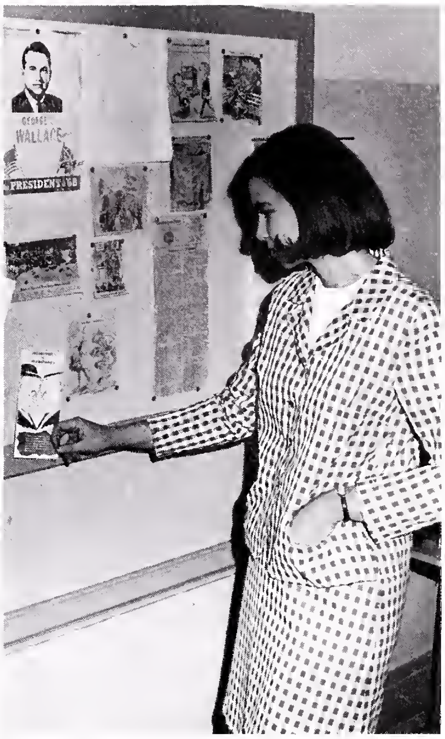
Grateful that their hard day of teaching is over, Mrs. Aine Smith and Mrs. Elsie Ellis head for home.

Coaches Norman Jenkins and James Porach convince Jimmy Jean that he can be a basketball star if he "keeps jumping!"



Contemplating the outcome of the election, Robert Powers regards the symbols of democracy—the flag and the vote.

As the candidates voice their opinions in the local newspaper, Mrs. Josephine Frederick scans an election article.



Observing various campaign literature, Miss Eleanor Poole ponders the intricacies of politics.

Teachers Prepare for Mock Election

Casting a baleful eye on the cameraman, John Leete prepares to light his favorite pipe.

In this rapidly moving, contemporary world, it is necessary to become acquainted with the thoughts, cultures, and ideals of many countries and civilizations. Attempting to meet the demanding challenge of familiarizing students with the principles of human behavior, the history department places greater stress on understanding than on memorizing, in an attempt to offer more than mere facts. Government, one of the most applicable subjects in our contemporary world, is also essential in understanding the reason for many events of the past. In geography classes students compare foreign countries with their own, keeping a human aspect in mind.

In addition to History 5, a controversial course of current events, History 6 was taught for the first time this year. This elective traces the history of the American Negro to his present day position.

Current events came alive during the first semester with the national Presidential campaign and election. Under the guidance of Miss Eleanor Poole, students were taught registering and voting procedures. Eighty-five per cent of the student body exercised their constitutional rights by voting Richard M. Nixon thirty-seventh United States President in the mock elections.

When two talented people like Mrs. Lou Musgrove and Mrs. Grace Edwards work together, the spring musical is destined to be a success.

With diplomacy band director, Ralph Stronach, prepares the girls for their final round of majorette competition.

Art and Music—Opportunity for Self-Expression

Providing an opportunity to express creative and cultural interests, art and music stimulate the appreciation and understanding of the fine arts. Experience gained in the classroom fosters in the student a respect for the cultural heritage which is ours today.

A varied music program is offered to the students of PHS. By taking band or choral music, one may further his creative skills while music appreciation, a survey of music history and theory, offers the pupil a chance for a deeper look into the complexities of music.

Acquiring skills in drawing and painting as well as developing appreciation for art in general are high on the list of objectives which are standard for art students. Great services are rendered to the student body by these gifted individuals. They provide decorations for dances and scenery for plays, design and make flags for school clubs, and fill the walls of the corridor with posters announcing school happenings.

Under the constant attention of teachers who are willing to give incessantly of their time and talents, the department of fine arts excels in cultural enrichment, striving to enhance and uphold the standards of PHS.

J. T. Britt watches Marvin Faison release his frustrations on the drums.

Using My First Spanish Reader, Miss Gladys Wilkinson attempts to teach Carmine Ruffa her favorite subject.

Making effective use of the lab, Mrs. Pat House and Mrs. Martha Broughton help their students master the French language.

Languages Essential for Communication

Vitally important in a world that is constantly becoming smaller is the knowledge of languages, the basis of all human relationships. To be a better participant in a world whose primary goals are to achieve global communications, international relationships, and worldwide understanding, studying a foreign language is essential.

In order to prepare students to meet the demands of our shrinking world, the language department at PHS includes three year courses in both French and Spanish and a four year course in Latin. This program includes laboratory work for French and Spanish classes, providing an opportunity for students to hear a foreign language spoken by native people. The laboratory was recently equipped with new tapes for third year French students. To increase enjoyment of Latin, cultural audio-visual aids have been added. For the first time this year, Latin Week, dedicated to the advancement of this ancient language, was observed. This dead language was brought alive during the week by a banquet complete with Roman togas and food.

No longer are foreign language classes just the study of written and spoken languages. Today's linguist must become acquainted with the country, its customs, and its place in today's world. Through the instruction received at PHS, these language students are ready to take their places in the multi-lingual world of tomorrow.

Dressed in authentic Roman togas, Janie Whitt, Sara Hill, and Michelle Richard display a famous Latin motto.

As Dewey Oakley visualizes the new business building, Mrs. Helen Brooks and Mrs. Mary Hohanness consider the expanded curriculum.

Mrs. Joanne Norman helps Phil Veazey prepare for a business career by showing him the operation of the key-punch machine.

In the business office Mrs. Jean Holland uses one of the many machines available to the commercial department.

Efficiency — Key to Business

Study, involvement in procedure, and practical application are guidelines used by the Business Education Department to mold a student into an efficient member of today's business society. Unlike many educational courses, this department prepares the individual for immediate occupation of a wage earning position upon graduation.

Individual skills are developed in such areas as typing, bookkeeping, shorthand, and office practice. Each pupil is able to discover which areas of study most interest and best suit him. Modern, carefully chosen equipment available in the business education department is helpful to the student.

Offering student mimeographing, duplicating, and typing services to faculty and administration, the department provides practical experience in business methods.

The business education department endeavors to maintain in PHS a replica of the complex business world of today. Students are constantly made aware of new practices and procedures in order that they may take their places in tomorrow's business world.

Often seen at a typewriter, Miss Nancy Inge performs many services for other members of the faculty.

Past Experience, Guideline for Future

Choosing the right course is an important decision for every student. PHS is fortunate to be staffed with an adequate guidance department which consults each student to provide the education best suited to his individual needs.

A variety of courses is offered to all students. Those who desire a college education may select from the scientific collegiate, liberal arts collegiate, or collegiate courses. Students who choose the vocational course have the advantage of a job while in high school leading to a possible career or to further study in a technical college. A general course provides the essentials necessary to obtain a job after graduation.

In addition to individual counseling, the guidance department provides many services to the students. Seniors who desire information concerning college boards or colleges always find that Miss Bailey has the answers. A battery of tests is administered to the entire student body each year in an effort to check achievement and improvement.

There is no problem so large that a solution cannot be found. The doors to the guidance offices are always open.

With a broad smile and a cup of coffee, Miss Mary Bailey's constant readiness to assist can easily be seen.

Reviewing the grading system used at PHS, Miss Kathrine Warner reminds ninth grader Kevin Key that the permanent record is a reflection of ability to do high school work.

Carefully checking off lists of students, Mrs. Georgia West and Miss Ann Lyons realize the accuracy required to provide schedules for fifteen-hundred students.

Miss Jacqueline Randolph discovers that instruction in soccer cannot be limited to the classroom.

Participants Become Physically Fit, Mentally Alert

In an exercise requiring teamwork Wayne Van Fossen prepares to catch the weight as Craig Parrish lifts it.

Coaches Nelson Ramsey, Bob Budlove, ,and Hal Rhodes relax in their favorite retreat, the coaches' office.

Musing over one of the many problems connected with the Junior Miss Pageant, Linda Matylewicz and Richard Zaruba attempt to reach a decision.

Mrs. Margaret Syme uses her charm to convince Miss JoAnne Kiser that she should carry the hockey equipment.

By stressing competitive achievements, physical education also attempts to develop mental awareness. The acquiring of skills in football, soccer, hockey, and basketball gives the individual physical alertness while training the mind for quick thought and reflex.

In an attempt to emphasize the importance of proper function of the human body, health is taught in conjunction with physical education. A practical and beneficial application of health, first aid instruction is a course in the prevention and treatment of both minor and major injuries.

The student gains classroom experience concerning driving automobiles in a course offered every semester. Augmenting the semester course are summer classes providing an opportunity for behind the wheel training.

The varied facets of physical education are important to every student during his high school career and have great influence on his future life. If one acquires an attitude of good sportsmanship plus a competitive spirit, then he has attained two qualities necessary for success. Combining these essentials with a practical knowledge of drivers' education and first aid, the individual is well-equipped not only for compatability, but also for helping his fellow man.

Technical and Domestic Skills

Instruction through experience is the main objective of mechanical drawing, home economics, and special education classes. As complex machinery and modern appliances help formulate our present environment, these classes attempt to familarize the student with the skills necessary to take his place in the mechanical world of tomorrow.

Through mechanical drawing instruction the student develops perception and accuracy. These principles formulate the basics for a future in drafting or engineering. Future homemaking is important to every girl. Through home economics each girl can receive first hand experience in the domestic arts — sewing, cooking, and housekeeping. In special education classes certain students receive individual help and guidance in a variety of subjects designed to make them better acquainted with the world and community in which they will be active citizens.

In all of these classes each day provides a new experience, a step by step method which culminates in the well-rounded, well-adjusted student.

Carlton Tew and Robert Jolly decide to find out if you really meet the nicest people on a Honda.

Mike Walker takes advantage of a class day spent outside. The object of his mechanical drawing study is the school.

Sewing proves to be an interesting as well as practical skill to home economics student Nancy Gates.

Develop Varied Vocations

On their arrival at school home economics teachers, Mrs. Dorothy Sears and Mrs. Carolyn Rennie, enter their home away from home.

Mrs. Katherine Prince begins her mornings by watering her elephant-earred coleus.

Special education class members take time from their usual schedule to make favors for Central State Hospital.

With interest and determination, DE coordinators, Bob Parr and Charlie Williams, find a job for a new student.

His work completed, Carter Murphy reflects that there are not enough hours in the day for a Vocational Coordinator.

Vocational Administrators

In preparation for post-high school training in technically oriented fields, students in the Vocational course endeavor to complete a rigorous program which introduces them to the areas of their interest. These students acquire skills which will be lucrative, regardless of the field eventually chosen. The Vocational Department strives to fit the aptitudes of the individual to the current demands of business and industry.

Unique among Virginia schools is the recently initiated Pre-Technical Vocational Course. This pilot program entails a combination of academics with vocational orientation. The eighth grader may choose manual skills or business directed courses alternating through four different areas of study, each running nine weeks. Students enrolled in this program must carry a full complement of English, mathematics, and science. Further specialization occurs in the ninth grade, where the student concentrates his efforts in only two areas. The freshman must choose as his elective a vocationally related subject. It is hoped that this program will enable students in the first two years of high school to make a logical career choice based on understanding. Beginning with the sophomore year, students spend half their time receiving training in their particular field, while the remainder is taken up with academics.

TO STRIVE . . .

ACTIVITIES

Extra-curricular activities add vigor and spice to the routine of every school day. Through club membership an individual may broaden his knowledge in many fields and develop new interests, both scholastic and cultural. The desire to join organizations and become a part of all experiences is the characteristic of involvement possessed by all well-rounded persons.

As the wearers of the Cockade Hats, our forefathers strove to serve their country and renew peace for all mankind. Today the necessity arises for the student "to strive" for the betterment of his school, community, and country. In the future many shall journey to foreign soil and fight for a common cause while others must work for the betterment of our society at hand. Yet, whether near or far, it is important to realize that people are gregarious and that only by group effort may the common goals of man be obtained.

Student Cooperative Association

SCA Officers: P. Santago, President F. Scott, Mr. Zaruba, D. Donnell.

Since its beginning in 1944, the Student Cooperative Association has maintained its purpose of helping govern the school and solving any problems that might arise. Working on a democratic basis, the council is composed of one representative and one alternate chosen from each English class.

Under the supervision of Mr. Richard Zaruba, the SCA has sponsored many successful projects this year. In addition to the regular tasks of decorating for Thanksgiving and Christmas, for the first time the SCA initiated the lost book library. Another new idea was making club flags, painted by the Art Club, which are to hang in the auditorium. To promote cleanliness in the school, the council held a Litter Week, which was climaxed by a movie on the subject. To eliminate the confusion of registration on the first day of school, the SCA sponsored a pre-registration session during August in which 78% of the student body participated. In order to provide students with information concerning upcoming activities, this group most efficiently keeps the first floor hall bulletin board up-to-date. By combining not only intelligence but also hard work, our Student Cooperative Association remains successful in all its endeavors.

Fulfilling his SCA obligations, Mr. Zaruba distributes cokes for the annual Christmas parties.

Richard Easter, Gerald Mitchell, and Larry Rhodes, aided by Mr. Halsey, embellish the main hall with a modernistic Christmas tree, one of the diverse SCA projects.

Inter-Club Council Mans Spirit Store

Presidents of all the clubs and the SCA vice-president, under the supervision of Mr. Richard Zaruba, constitute the Inter-Club Council. Although its major function is to coordinate the various activities of the numerous clubs, this organization also informs other clubs of events taking place at PHS.

During summer vacation the Inter-Club Council held a workshop. In addition to gaining a better understanding of parliamentary procedure and learning ways to improve their clubs, the members planned this year's activities. With the continued effort of the energetic members, Oklahoma, our fourth musical, was presented. Besides sponsoring its own projects throughout the year, the Inter-Club Council aids in the activities of the individual clubs.

Undertaking the new ICC project of manning the Spirit Store are Marie Thompson and Jackie Wiles, who attempt to sell slide rules to Danny Bunnel and Ruby Elder.

'68 Missile Places First at Columbia

Contrary to the expressions of Donna Drebber and Sue White, copying names for the index is a long and tiring task.

Mr. Tew, Kandy Kahl, Mrs. Lampman, and Gail Tobias are about to enter the library at Columbia University to receive the yearbook rating.

Missile Editorial Staff: Seated: B. Basl, K. Martinko, L. Matylewicz, Editor K. Kahl, G. Tobias, S. White, C. Jackson, B. Slate. Standing: R. Crowder, Mrs. Lampman, M. Cuthbert, C. Payne.

SUBSTITUTE

Our Missile photographer Mr. Tew is often found hard at work developing pictures in the dark room.

Missile Presents Pictoral Coverage of School Year

Missile class section heads and layout staff: Seated: K. Kinsey, E. Dix, C. Gibbs, L. Felty, P. Costner, R. Jones, B. Perkinson. Standing: K. McDonald, I. Pritchett, Mrs. Irvine.

Producing an outstanding yearbook which represents all phases of school life is the aim of those on the Missile staff. Membership, which is on a voluntary basis, requires dedicated students willing to give of their time and energy in order to create a memorable annual. The diligent, industrious staff members, under the supervision of Mrs. Earlene Lampman and her assistants, are rewarded at the end of the year for their great labors by the publishing of an exceptional yearbook.

This fall the editors went to New York City to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association where the 1968 Missile received a first place rating. Workshops were also attended in which valuable new ideas for improving our yearbook were gained. For the first time the Missile was also presented to the Southern Interscholastic Press Association in Lexington for another judging.

Displaying a pictoral coverage of the activities of our school year, the Missile is a souvenir and treasure to all PHS students. The lasting memories contained within the covers of this publication will indeed live in years to come.

Busy Missile typist Christine Rhodes often finds her job vital to the operations of our yearbook.

Missile assistants: Seated: A. Chappell, J. Wiles, Mrs. Donovan, R. Sanders, J. Minetree, C. Rhodes. Standing: L. Arnold, S. Andrews, S. Nelson, E. Becker, P. Muto, D. Drebber.

With much enthusiasm Francis Tyler takes on the task of laying out a page for the Review.

Review Reporters

Published eleven times yearly, the Petersburg High Review is the voice of the student body. This newspaper, under the supervision of Miss Helen Haynie and Mrs. Shirley Willcox, informs students and teachers of school and social activities, administrative policies, and athletic events. Also included are entertaining and informative articles ranging from commentaries on moralistic principles to juicy gossip.

Staff membership, presently consisting of seventeen editorial assistants and twenty issue reporters, is open to all students interested in journalism. For the first time a special study hall is held for those on the Review staff so that they may accomplish more during school hours.

Annually the Review is entered into competition in Lexington, Virginia to receive a rating. Editors from PHS attend this convention to acquire new ideas to improve our paper.

Review Editorial Staff: Front row: N. Plott, Editor J. Temple, L. Gainey, J. Plott. Second row: D. Jacobs, E. Challen, Miss Haynie, M. Thompson, F. Tyler, B. Silverman. Last row: B. Deekens, F. Scott, B. Liskey, T. Thomas, F. Ende.

In preparation for a teaching career, Carolyn Gibbs tries to explain to Carter Spencer an algebraic solution.

Today's Tutors— Tomorrow's Teachers

Probably the most important and impressive honor which could be bestowed upon any member of the student body is membership in the National Honor Society, granted only to those students who are able to meet the club's high standards. Juniors and seniors who have an overall scholastic average of 93 and who meet the requirements of citizenship, leadership, and service, are eligible to be inducted. After having been selected by a committee of faculty members, each individual must uphold the principles of the society and maintain a good scholastic average. National Honor Society, sponsored by Mrs. Mildred Irvine, serves mainly as an honorary organization because many of its members are involved in several other extra-curricular activities.

Literary Clubs Meet Journalistic Demands

Correspondence Club: Kneeling: President B. Graboyes, Mr. Ruffa, G. Curtis. Sitting: B. Cole, L. Laderach, N. Howard, P. Laity, V. Fauntleroy, J. Landau, J. McGuigan.

Frank Scott and Nancy Plott find the Quill and Scroll Tea to be a new and exciting adventure.

To help the cause of world peace, the Correspondence Club employs its skill at diplomatic relations in writing to citizens of foreign countries. This new association, under the leadership of Mr. Carmine Ruffa, tries to promote international friendship by writing truthfully about our country.

At their bi-monthly meetings, members write to the mayors of small foreign cities to obtain names of persons interested in corresponding with the club. Also, projects are planned, ranging from films to trips to museums to see exhibits from other countries. Anyone who is interested in increasing his knowledge in the field of foreign affairs is urged to become a member.

Quill and Scroll: Seated: K. Kahl, P. Costner, President R. Jones, N. Plott, F. Scott, G. Tobias. Standing: Mrs. Donovan, Miss Haynie.

Junior and senior students who have proved their ability in the journalistic and literary fields comprise Quill and Scroll. Membership is limited to fifteen new members; candidates must rank in the upper third of their class and be recommended by a faculty advisor of one of the school's publications or by the old members. Among Quill and Scroll's activities are holding a literary tea in the spring at which book reviews are given and maintaining a regular column in the Review. As a club, jointly sponsored by Miss Helen Haynie and Mrs. Beverly Donovan, these members constantly strive to relate their ideas, never failing to remember that the pen is indeed the tongue of the mind.

Treasured Memories Stem from Years in Social Clubs

While Kathy Kolb pours punch at the Annual Silver Tea, other members socialize with the many guests.

Spreading friendship, projecting school spirit, and rendering services are the goals of Petersburg High School's social clubs. Membership is obtained by individual invitations approved by the members.

Annually awarding the Mary T. Perkins Latin Trophy to an outstanding third or fourth year Latin student is the main Goober Pep project. In conjunction with the club's desire to serve the community and school, the Goober Pep Club, sponsored by Mrs. Betty Cowden, collects books for a Women's Club and works in the Spirit Store for two weeks each semester.

Engaged in a variety of interesting activities, Square Circle Honor Society, guided by Mrs. Pat House, holds its Annual Silver Tea in December and a fashion show in the early spring. In addition to these projects, the members sell candy at the basketball games.

Composed of an odd number of girls, the Odd Girls Club with its sponsor, Miss Kathrine Warner, promotes honor throughout the school in an effort to uphold its main objective. Presenting an oil painting of historic interest to the school and sponsoring a Christmas party at the City Home are two of the club's main functions.

Lasting friendships and treasured memories stem from many enjoyable years in the PHS social clubs.

Showing the exuberance and vivacity typical of Scotland, the Goober Pep Club participated in the Fall Festival Parade with its adept float.

Spirited Gold Blazers Generate Enthusiasm

A stream of spirit is always flowing through PHS because of the sparkling vivacity of the Gold Blazers, sponsored by Miss Mary Bailey and Miss Ellen Moyer. By teaching cheers and songs, encouraging participation in all school activities, and serving as an organized pep squad for the cheerleaders, these girls are able to keep our school's enthusiasm at a peak.

Throughout the year the Gold Blazers render great service to our school. They display victory signs in the halls supporting the athletic teams, decorate the goal posts for home football games, and serve as ushers of Parents' Day and College Night. Annually, the month of June is highlighted by a banquet at Whitmore's Restaurant honoring the Senior Gold Blazers.

Representatives from each ninth grade homeroom, finalists and semi-finalists in cheerleading or majorette competition, and a few elected upperclassmen compose the membership of the Gold Blazers.

Key Club Develops Maturity in Members

Sponsored by the Petersburg Kiwanis Club, our PHS Key Club aims toward developing its members spiritually, morally, and intellectually. Prospective members are selected by the club as a whole and must have an average of 85 and the approval of our principal, Mr. Edwin M. Betts.

An annual project of the Key Club is the sale of Christmas trees, carried on each year despite the harsh cold, wind, and snow sometimes associated with December weather. In addition to the sale of trees, the organization also sells peanut brittle from which it reaps profits enabling it to give a banquet for new members.

Monitors Manipulate Multitudes

One of the most active organizations at Petersburg High School today is the Monitors Club. Although its primary objective is to maintain order in our crowded halls and to maneuver the masses during the short time period for class change, it is also responsible for seating students in the auditorium during assemblies. Supervised by Mr. Wade Halsey, these boys are helpful in rendering a great service to our school. Satisfactory grades, good citizenship qualities, and the approval of the principal qualify a boy to become a member of this organization. The services rendered by this organization keep our student body moving in an orderly manner.

Although Cindy Peters and Debbie Coyle seem quite unconcerned with the situation at hand, Renate Brown insists that monitor Charlie Grainger is in the wrong and that she may use these steps.

Science Club Project, Trip to Wallop's Island

For students interested in the field of science, the organization of the Science Club proved to be of great value. In order to give any student an opportunity to enrich his knowledge of the various sciences, the club's only requirements for becoming a member are genuine interest and willingness to participate. A high level of concern is maintained by those composing the club due to the countless scientific experiences offered. A field trip to Wallop's Island and a tour of Petersburg General Hospital are only a few of the club's projects. Sponsored within the state by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and locally by Mr. Jimmy Sublett, the Virginia Junior Academy of Science, although only in its second year of existence, is an important part of life at PHS.

Special Services Lends Helping Hand

With an outstretched hand the Special Services Club stands ready to serve all organizations and activities in our school and community. Regardless of the fact that it is only in its first year of existence, this organization has already diligently helped the SCA, collected clothing and articles for Central State Hospital, and adopted a needy family. For their Christmas project this year, members collected money for the Christmas baskets which are sponsored by the Monogram Club, and together these clubs bought food for them.

Membership of the club, under the guidance of Mrs. Katherine Prince, is composed of the students in the Special Education classes.

French and Spanish Clubs Bring Lands Little Closer

When a student feels the compulsion to devote extra time to his French, he will find the door to Le Cercle Francais open. Through the medium of French games, songs, and talks by guest speakers, students have become better acquainted with the French language and culture. Christmas caroling in the halls, weekly meetings, and programs broaden the students' knowledge of France and her people.

Membership in the French Club consists of students who have completed at least one semester of French, enabling them to present more programs in French and to become more familiar with the language.

As the special occasion of the year, the French Club presents a Christmas party which creates a festive mood for the coming holiday. For the first time a skit, "The Christmas Carol," was presented to highlight this year's event.

In order to gain a closer relationship with Spain and other Spanish speaking countries, the Spanish Club was organized. Open to any interested student who has had at least one semester of the language, the club provides an opportunity to acquire more knowledge of the countries' cultural and general aspects.

At their bi-monthly meetings, members learn about the country, people, and customs through films and guest speakers. Here projects to bring Spain closer home are also discussed, especially the Christmas party at which their famous piñata is broken.

With señorita Gladys Wilkinson as its able leader, the club offers an enlightening experience for members of our student body.

Wave Lettermen Enforce Sportsmanship Code

With the Varsity Club shields on their crimson jackets, these boys are true heroes as they contribute to our school victories and at the same time set the standard of sportsmanship for their fellow students. Although practices and games take up most of their time throughout the different playing seasons, these sportsmen find opportunities to deliver Christmas baskets and to earn money for their annual banquet.

To be eligible for membership in this club, a boy must have earned a varsity sports letter as proof of his abilities and skills.

Varsity Club members, Keith Barker and Buz Oakley, lend a helping hand to the Monogram Club in the distribution of Christmas baskets.

Monogram Club Plays Santa for Needy Families

Velma Stuart, Arnette Lundy, Glennis Lee, and Pat Harris divide food, toys, and clothing for the Christmas baskets.

Hard-working and always helping are the words which students associate with the Monogram Club. Besides selling drinks at home basketball games, polishing the school trophies, and helping the school supply each student with an activities calendar, each year this club is in charge of collecting and sending Christmas baskets to needy families.

These girls strive to promote good sportsmanship and stimulate interest in the participation of girls' sports. Membership is open to any girl who has lettered in either basketball or softball.

Chess Club Faces Checkmate

Having been established this year, the Chess Club strives to regenerate an interest in this intricate game of miniature warfare. Tournaments between the club members are conducted throughout the year to determine the club's holder of the cup. Providing an opportunity for enjoyment and cultural advancement, this club has already proved to be an asset to our school. Any student wishing to acquire a knowledge of chess or learn new strategic maneuvers is welcomed as a member.

Christian Fellowship Promoted by Hi-Y's

To instill and extend in students a desire for high standards of Christian character throughout the home, school, and community is the aim of the three YMCA affiliated clubs.

Girls of the K-Warner and Pence Tri-Hi-Y perform many helpful services each year. At Christmas they work in Salvation Army booths. Both groups send representatives to the Model General Assembly and help support the March of Dimes. Participation in these clubs encourages each girl to strive to better herself just as she works to help others.

The boys of Cockade Hi-Y, mainly a service organigation, help man the Salvation Army booths at Christmas and sell Cokes at home baseball games. By sponsoring a float in the Fall Festival Parade their dedication to PHS is justly shown.

Membership in these clubs is open to any student who is willing to actively support the clubs and uphold their high standards.

To insure the smooth operation of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs, the Y-Council, their governing body is composed of the officers of the three clubs. Responsible for the planning and carrying out of their activities and business matters, the members of the council meet monthly and by using their forethoughts and ingenuity accomplish their often difficult tasks.

Two of the best known Y-Council projects are the sponsoring of the Thanksgiving Assembly and and the exchanging of the friendship trophy between Hopewell and Petersburg high schools at the annual football game. Each year the Y-Council nominates representatives from the Hi-Y's to attend the Model General Assembly in the spring. They also select members to run for the state Y-Council offices. Organized to govern the three Hi-Y's, this executive council serves its purpose to the greatest degree.

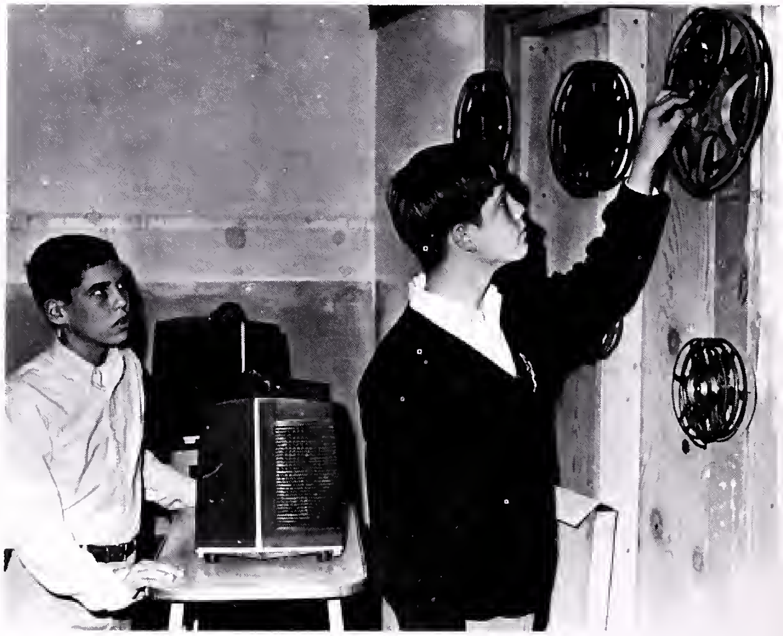
Technicians Provide Audio-Visual Aids

Our group of qualified technicians, known as the Projection Crew, is always on the scene to assist the faculty in providing more interesting material for the students. These boys are responsible for the handling of films, slides, projectors, and record players.

Before entering this service organization, one must complete a training course and pass a test about the projector proving he can operate and repair the equipment properly. Under the capable direction of Mrs. Thelma Douthat, the organization is of valuable service to the entire school.



After showing a film, Jamie Mason and Phil McEwen return the projector and reel to the equipment room.

Members of the library staff fulfill certain capacities necessary to the scholastic enlightenment of the pupils. Checking out books, stamping passes, keeping the shelves in order, and taking a bi-annual inventory are just some of the many duties that these girls perform. Under the direction of Mrs. Rhea Dodge this volunteer group works before school and during their study halls in an effort to provide PHS with an excellent library. Aiding the librarian, these girls insure the smooth operation of the library and help maintain an atmosphere which is conducive to study.

Striving to broaden their knowledge of the business world, Commercial Club members attempt to develop a better understanding in the choice of a useful occupation and to create a closer relationship between class activities and business life. In an effort to serve PHS, this organization, sponsored by Miss Nancy Inge, vigorously participates in school activities and encourages and recognizes scholastic achivement.

Any female student having completed one business course is eligible to join the Commercial Club at the beginning of each semester.

Today's complex technological society has increased the demand for technically skilled workers. To help meet this demand of specialization, the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America provides an opportunity for students to train in the professional field of their choice. Promoting vocational understanding, leadership abilities, and civic conscientiousness, VICA organizes trade, technical, and industrial students. Sponsored by Mr. James Aldredge, this organization accepts as members any students enrolled in the industrial and trade educational classes. Membership, offering excellent opportunities for advancement, is encouraged for these students.

DECA Participates in Marketing Functions

Our Distributive Education Club of America, sponsored by Mr. Robert Parr, involves students interested in the field of merchandising. While continuing their education, these students engage in part-time employment giving them professional training in salesmanship, advertising, and interviewing. Membership is open to any student in the DE program.

Petersburg students participate in district, state, and national contests concerning marketing functions. Other activities of this national youth organization include sending representatives to the annual DECA Conference in Richmond, Virginia and participating in the district DECA Convention in an area school.

Canvas, Brush, and Paints —

Painting a mural for the first floor hall was one of many Christmas projects undertaken by Art Club members, Reid Collier and Karen Lynch.

Through colorful posters and decorations, the Art Club beautifies our school and inspires students to take interest in many of its activities. Concerts, plays, and school and club activities rely on the Art Club to keep the students informed and interested. This fall the special project of the organization was to help the Inter-club Council to make for each club a flag bearing its emblem.

It is an outlet to creativity for students who are interested in art. In order to be considered for membership a student must be in grades ten through twelve and must pass a special test measuring his artistic abilities. These tests, displaying the talent of prospective members, are graded by a committee of teachers including the sponsor of the club, Mrs. Lou Musgrove.

This year the Art Club took its annual trip to Virginia Beach. Members enjoyed a visit to Old Dominion College where they discussed many phases of art with the college's department head. They were also given the opportunity to further their artistic endeavors by attending an art class at Granby High School in Norfolk, Virginia.

In the art room Jill Sheintoch, Nancy Phillips, and Kay Gianinny finish posters for the school.

Last year the Junior Art Club was formed to give the eighth and ninth graders a chance to show their interest in the field of art. Through strict competition and judging, talented persons, after taking a difficult test determining their ability, are chosen as members. Their main objective is to assist the Art Club in completing all projects for the school and community.

Members attend meetings twice a month in an effort to attain the high goals which they have set for themselves. Sponsored jointly by Mrs. Helen Brooks and Mrs. JoAnn Norman, this service organization has progressed greatly through the year.

In addition to aiding the Art Club with its projects, this year the Junior Art Club also made poinsetters as decorations for the Christmas assembly. Paintings and projects completed by this club indeed exemplify the fact that PHS is an excellent environment for our many talented students eager to express their feelings through creative art work.

GLEE CLUB IN AUSTRIA

Portraying the country of Austria in the Fall Festival Parade, the Glee Club added to the joyous weekend festivities with their beautiful music.

Under the able direction of Mrs. Grace Edwards, the Glee Club strives to create a genuine interest in music. Through competitive tryouts those persons displaying talent and ability are chosen as members at the beginning of each semester. Enthusiasm and participation have greatly increased within the Glee Club, now consisting of over eighty members. They learn to appreciate and better understand the world of music through their numerous projects. These include collaborating with the band for the Christmas and Pops Concerts, participating in several assemblies, performing at Willcox Lake, and presenting the annual musical production.

The Girls' Ensemble and the Pro Musica Ensemble, two selective groups, perform for various civic groups, churches, and organizations. Composed of eight to ten girls chosen from the Glee Club, the Girls' Ensemble sings folk songs with guitar accompaniment. The Pro Musica Ensemble performs a cappella numbers from the early Renaissance and contemporary periods. Thus, the Glee Club and its affiliated organizations indeed serve both the school and the community.

Diligent Practice Makes for Flawless Performance

Greatly helping to stimulate school spirit, the majorettes participate both at pep rallies and on the football field. Many parades, such as the Petersburg Christmas Parade, the Veterans' Day Parade, and the University of Virginia Homecoming Parade, are made better by their participation. Adding spice and color to the PHS band, they continue to hold the admiration of all those who watch them.

Aptly displaying their talents with a sense of enjoyment and vigor, the squad consists of ten regular members and four alternates who are chosen to participate in parades and other festivities. In May new members are selected in competitive tryouts by band officers and the present majorettes. Stiff competition enhances the excitement and enthusiasm accompanying these tryouts.

In order to assure a flawless performance of their intricate routines, the majorettes spend much time and energy in diligent practice. Even during the summer they devote several hours daily in preparation fot the upcoming football season. They are finally rewarded by presenting an outstanding halftime show.

In addition to presenting a halftime show to entertain the spectators, our majorettes enjoy performing their routines for the band members during a time-out of the football game.

Concert Band Provides Enlightening Entertainment

Augmenting the festive mood of Christmas, the band offers a medley of carols.

Whether performing at pep rallies, providing pregame or halftime entertainment at football games, or participating in parades, the Petersburg High School Band always strives to maintain the high standards of excellence set by bands of previous years. Throughout the school year the Band, consisting of over a hundred members, is always on hand to arouse enthusiasm in both adult and student audiences.

In collaboration with the Glee Club the Concert Band presents the enlightening Christmas Concert. Later in the school year it presents the Annual Spring Concert. The Stage Band, a subdivision of the Concert Band, provides the instrumental music for the school's musical production and the Junior Miss Pageant.

On occasions the necessity of a small ensemble is fulfilled by the Pep Band, a group of approximately twenty boys.

Finding enjoyment and rewarding experiences in their activities and performances during the year, the talented musicians are guided by Mr. Ralph Stronach, our band director. This devoted and capable leader endows not only time to his band members but also heartening inspirations.

TO SEEK . . .

STUDENT LIFE

Although a vast amount of knowledge may be accumulated from books, the enrichment of life cannot be found within their covers. One's friends and associates are primary factors in the alteration of his life. As the Cockade Hat united men for a common cause, likewise the students of PHS are united in their search for the intangible qualities of friendship.

One who greets you with a smile on a Monday morning, one who explains the reduction rule to you before a trig exam, one who pats your back with genuine sincerity after being defeated in an election — these are the students who bring PHS alive and who develop its distinct personality. In past years nameless faces have become lunch pals, lab partners, and best friends. And yet the endless search for companionship never ceases. "To seek" friendship and the enrichment of life that follows is a vocation of all who enter the halls of PHS.

Cheerleaders, Majorettes, Band Generate Spirit

Enthusiasm and exuberance of the student body are generated into an enormous amount of spirit here at PHS. At pep rallies and football games our cheerleaders and gold blazers exert their endless forces of energy to keep PHS spirit alive. Besides these groups, our coaches also greatly influence the intense interest in our teams by participating wholeheartedly in these events.

Another aspect of the vitality existing at PHS is the newly established Spirit Store. Selling various articles such as crimson wind breakers and "Wave Pens," this enterprise offers all kinds of interesting paraphernalia to eager students. Because of this overwhelming desire to support our school, the spirit at Petersburg High soars to heights unknown the entire year.

PHS Queens Display Crowns with Pride

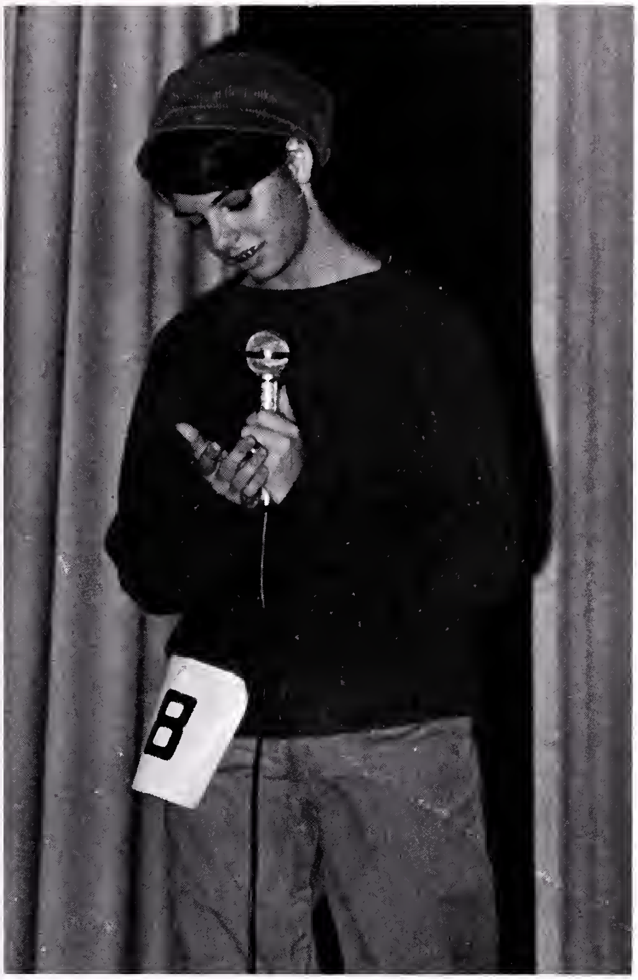
Rather than being a popularity contest, the election of our area's Junior Miss is based on personality, poise, talent, and scholastic achievements. Annually, the pageant is jointly sponsored by the Senior Class and the Petersburg Jaycees. This beneficial project provides the participating girls with much valuable experience, and the students attending with an evening of delightful entertainment.

In addition to this exciting attraction, each year the students select queens to reign over each of their three dances. These elections are urged not only to recognize the beauty present in our school, but also to heighten the mood of these festive occasions. Since wearing a crown is quite an honor, our female students wait with anticipation for a nomination to represent their class, thus, receiving an opportunity to compete for the title.

Tears of joy in her eyes, Fall Festival Queen Kathe Kutsher proudly exhibits her crown as Mr. Betts and her escort Frank Scott gaze pleasingly.

Marching down the runway, Becky Slate displays her physical fitness form during the Junior Miss Pageant.



"Who will buy . . ." sings Carole Sue Jackson as she portrays Oliver Twist in her talent presentation.

With artistic form, first runner-up Robin Jones entertains her audience with a karate demonstration touched with oriental gestures.

Junior Miss Contestants Possess Poise and Talent

Shrilled beyond belief, Elaine Challen meets her public with a smile after being crowned 1969 Junior Miss.

Opportunities for Talented

A Renaissance of Roman culture took place when Cheryl Jordan, Pat Hundley, and Veronica Fauntleroy re-enacted an ancient dance.

Ricky Betton's instrument, the ancient recorder, is easily adapted to Kathy Kolb's modern arrangement.

Through song and music the disasterous effects of drugs were explained to the student body during an assembly.

A PHS artist captures a spring day in watercolors at the annual Park Show held in Poplar lawn.

Talented Betty Dunnavant presents her version of the "Charleston" in the Junior Miss Pageant.

in Area of Culture

In the cultural aspects of our school life, a great number of PHS students show their basic concern by participating in the production of plays, concerts, and lasting works of art. Along with the valuable experiences obtained by the participants, these presentations also provide the school with cultural knowledge that not only proves essential to the progression of our school, but also introduces each student to a more interesting and profitable phase of life.

Ralph Stronach continues rehearsal while trumpeters, Jerry Packer and Jimmy Donahue, pause to muse over an unexcusable blunder.

As Mrs. Edwards reproduces the styles of various composers, the chorus listens attentively.

Directed by Mrs. Edwards and Mr. Stronach, the annual Christmas Concert inspired many students and parents with the joyous holiday spirit.

"South Pacific" Deemed Success Due to Precision,

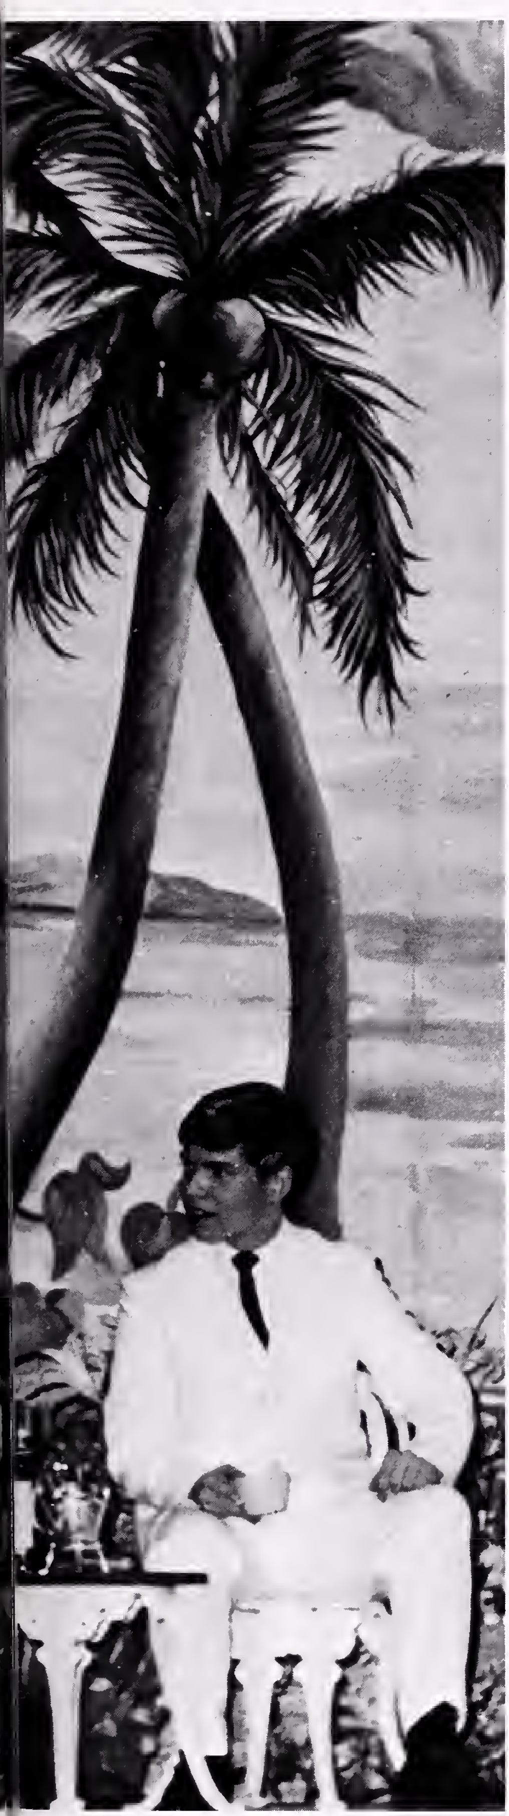
Fond memories of a beautiful island dance through Kenny Jenkins' mind as the sweet melody of Bali Hi haunts the atmosphere.

After hours of hard work in preparation for South Pacific, Director Mrs. Edwards, her assistant Robert Jones, and Edwin Betts give the cast their final pep talk before the first performance.

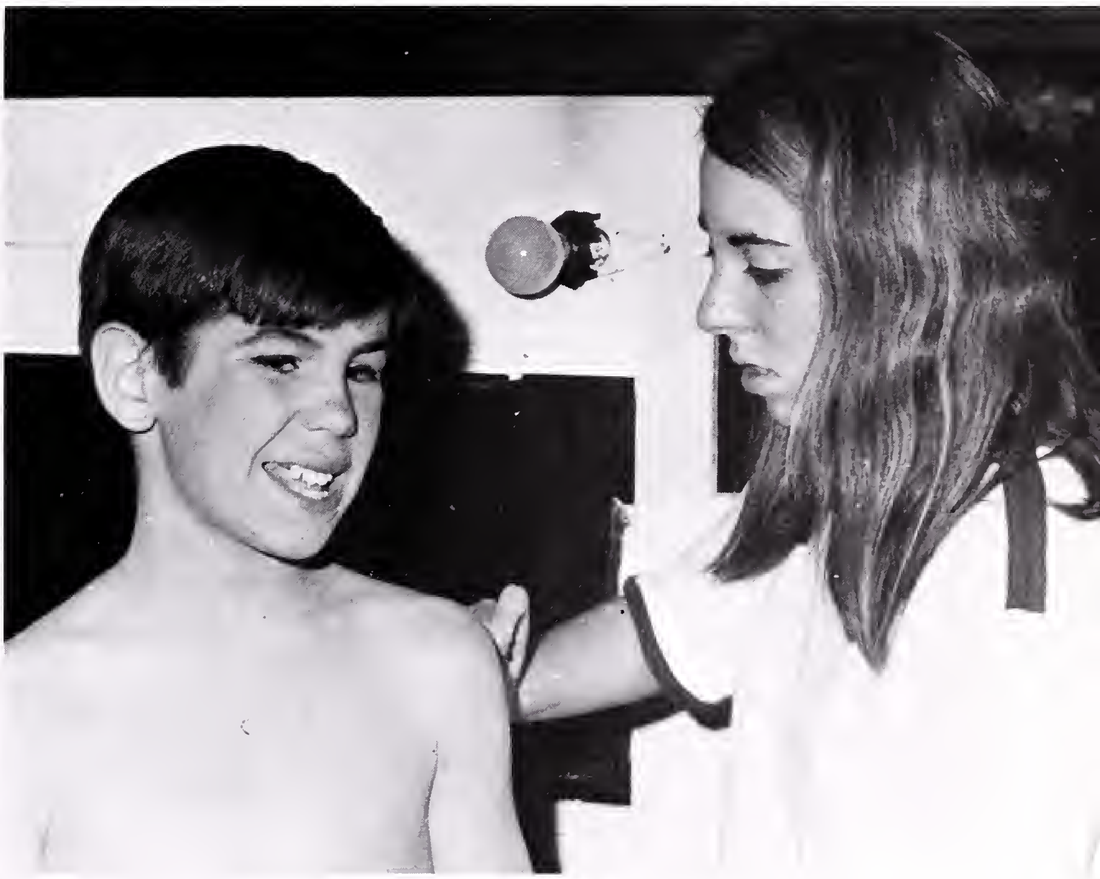
Fine Acting

In a passionate embrace Frank Wiley and Karen Murphy show their true affection for one another.

Carole Sue Jackson and Glenn Plott pause during their singing of "Dites-moi."



During a patio scene in "South Pacific" leads, Karen Murphy and Frank Wiley, chat over tea.



Realizing the importance of makeup, Ann Jacobs carefully applies the final touches to Glenn Plott's back.

This year Optimist Awards were presented to the following students: Nancy Plott, citizenship; Fletcher Braswell, athletics; Reid Collier, art; Robert Jones, academics; and Becky Slate, music.

Civic Groups Recognize Students Who Excel

In each of the various fields of learning at Petersburg High, there are students who win acclaim. To reward these scholars for their achievements and to show appreciation for their contributions, numerous honors are presented to a select few each year. These awards are not based on popularity, but qualities such as personality, leadership, and skills. Such awards as the DAR Citizenship award, the American Legion Speakers Award, Optimist, and National Merit Awards are only examples of a few of the honors received annually by deserving students. For the first time we must also recognize those who are representing PHS on the High School Bowl.

Included among the exemplary honors won by our students are the Daughters of the American Revolution Citizenship Award given to Karen Murphy and the Latin award presented to Janet Landau.

Semi-finalists Karen Johnson and Linda Matylewicz and finalist Robert Jones win high acclaim through the National Merit tests.

The American Legion Speaker's Award was presented to David Minton in recognition of his fine speaking ability.

HIGH SCHOOL BOWL

High School Bowl contestants Peter Santago, Gary Curtis, Robert Jones, John Richardson, and alternate Bobby Silverman realize that quick recall is important as coach Jimmy Sublett fires the questions.

Tireless Travellers Take Thrilling Trips

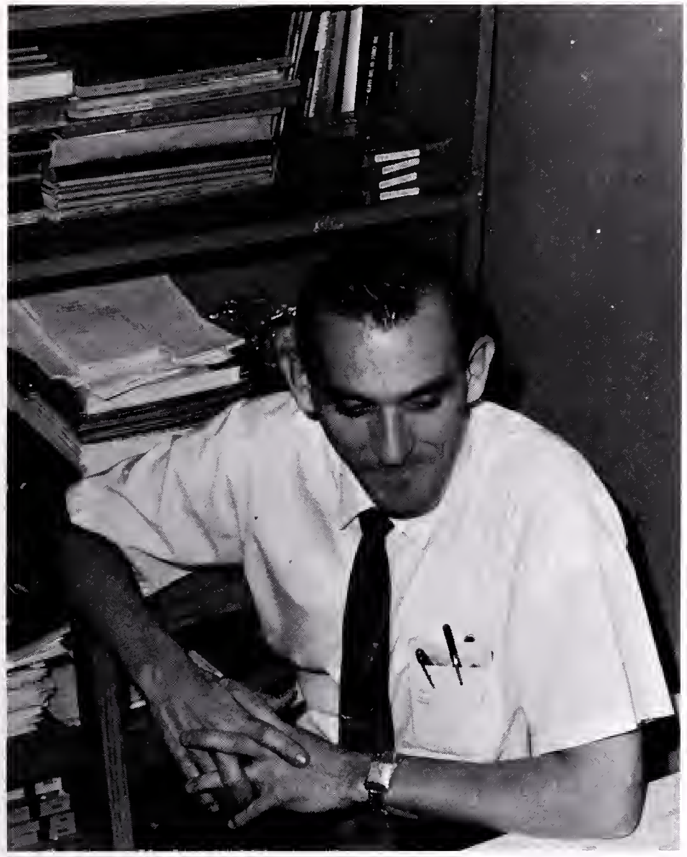
Completely exhausted from their Columbia trip, Missile Advisor Mrs. Lampman, Assistant Editor Gail Tobias, and Editor-in-Chief Kandy Kahl "take five."

As a means of supplementing a student's education, PHS has learned that travel plays a vital role in school life. Each year numerous field trips are planned not only to contribute to one's knowledge, but also to add variety and excitement to the daily ritual of attending classes. Journeys such as the Missile staff's visit to Columbia University, the senior trip to Annapolis, Boys' and Girls' State, and the countless trips to football games serve to enlighten the minds of the participants and to influence the total enviroment of PHS.

Indulging in three of life's greater pleasures, Steve Akers and Kathe Kutsher make the most of their senior trip.

Recounting fond memories of Girls' State, Karen Murphy, Brenda Wilkinson, and Carolyn Gibbs examine the annual with their counterparts at Boys' State, Robert Jones, Frank Scott, Tommy Clarke, and Peter Santago.

A Navy fan himself, Herbert Kimmel listens with dismay as University of Virginia scores another touchdown.



Momentarily retiring to his alcove, the Science Office, Mr. Sublett assumes an abnormally complacent expression.

The intricacies of registration, a preliminary to the mock election, are explained to Karen Murphy by Susan Andrews and Karen Martinko.

'68-69 — Never to Be Forgotten

A never-to-be-forgotten year, the 1968-69 school session, has been full of memorable experiences for many of the students at Petersburg High. Numerous activities, such as the annual play, concerts, dances, sports, and assemblies, have sparked the enthusiasm of every member of the student body. Even such incidents as class changes and fire drills provided some type of entertainment for the students during school hours. No matter what the situation, notable or trivial, 1968-69 has been an event in itself — a phase of our lives which will always be worth recalling.

Escaping a mid-afternoon downpour, Marian Anderson and Janet DeWitt make haste through the teachers' parking lot.

Deciding whether or not to attend class, Linda Felty attempts to judge the teacher's mood.

Among his other attributes, Frank Scott enjoys skipping rope.

Jeanette Cohn escapes Cameron Field to imagine herself as a pirate on the high seas.

Vice-President Francisco Ferrer, Secretary Kathy Cornett, and President Bert Poole serve as the eighth grade officers.

Confronting the eighth grader are both the explicit act of entering high school and the more implicit act of spurning childhood for the maturity requisite for future success.

The newcomer finds himself in an unfamiliar situation filled with hall confusion, academics, and extra-curricular activities. The eighth grader soon realizes that in order to excel he must not only follow the advice of teachers and upperclassmen but also rely on his own judgment and ability. At the beginning of the year an orientation day was held to introduce the incoming student to his new world.

Highlighting the year was the sponsoring of a Sing Out South program. This provided group experience, helping the eighth grader to become better adjusted to the scholastic environment in which he will spend his next four years.

Spirited Freshmen Support Projects

With a year's experience in his favor the ninth grader is better able to apply himself not only to scholastic endeavors but also to extra-curricular activities. Having no major project, the freshman uses the spirit gained in his previous year to aid his class and school. During this year the freshman begins to take his place in the world of PHS. Whether cheering the Wave to victory or helping with the SCA litter campaign, the freshman always lends the expected support. A sense of fulfillment augmented by the security of becoming firmly established is the greatest reward of the year. The freshman must also work to provide himself with the academic achievement which will be the foundation of his future.

Leadership is displayed by freshmen officers, Secretary Barbara Wilkinson, President James Jackson, and Vice-President Nancy Howard.

Success Sought by Scholastic Sophomores

Carefree sophomore officers, President Pam Shell, Vice-President Caroline Stowe, and Secretary Becky Jones, enjoy clowning on the fire escape.

Midway in his high school career, the sophomore must pause to consider his accrued progress and make certain decisions relevant to his future. Perhaps the most unique year of high school, the tenth grade marks the turning point, where the student can no longer be led, but must strive forward on his own initiative both in scholastic and extra-curricular pursuits.

Sponsoring the Fall Festival Dance and Parade, the sophomore is given the opportunity to accept considerable responsibility. "Around the World in Eighty Days" was not only colorful and exciting but also added to the levels of experience and responsibility which are necessary as the sophomore makes one more step toward that final year.

Junior Year Offers Span of Activities

Approaching the end of his high school career, a member of the junior class begins to concentrate his activities on the not too distant graduation. While the scholastic aspect of school life becomes increasingly difficult, extra-curricular pursuits become more numerous and more gratifying. The newly acquired ring separates the junior from the underclassman and marks the point at which he can look beyond high school. Taking the PSAT in October and later perusing catalogues, the college-bound junior examines various institutions, seeking the one which suits him best. Among the projects undertaken by the class was a magazine sales drive, carried out in an effort to finance the Ring Dance, the social event of their year.

President Jenny Plott, Secretary Linda Gainey, and Vice-President Jennie Carelock peek around the corner at their friends.

Facing the oncoming year with a smile are the following low senior class officers: Debbie Donnell, secretary; Tommy Clarke, president; and Kathe Kutsher, vice-president.

Climax of Five Years Foreseen by Seniors

With umbrella in hand, high senior class officers, Secretary Anne Chappell, President Kandy Kahl, and Vice-President Linda Felty, prepare for a rainy day.

Culminating the panoply of graduation, the senior year is the final result of five grueling years, time spent working toward the valued diploma. While making preparations for either college or a vocation, the senior is confronted with a myriad of activities, ranging from the senior trip to Mount Vernon and Annapolis to sponsoring the highly successful Junior Miss Pageant. The attempt to balance the increased responsibilities of studies with the newly developed independence of the adult is only one of the conflicts which must be encountered. Whether the student has resolved these conflicts will be revealed in the future as he goes forth realizing that during his years at PHS he has received the background requisite for success.

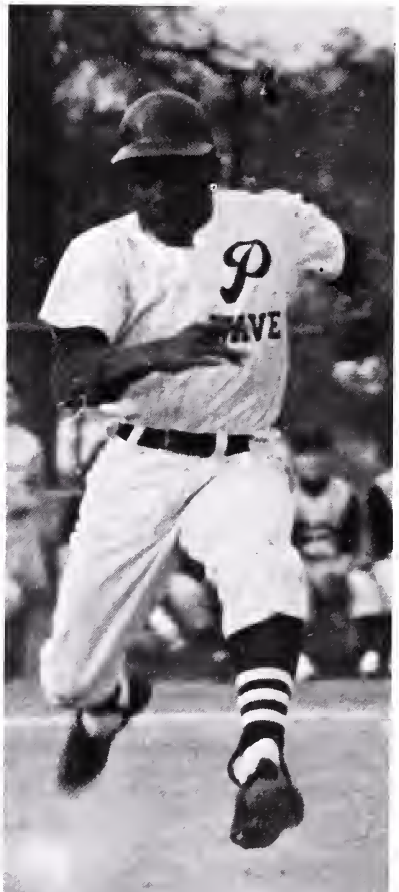
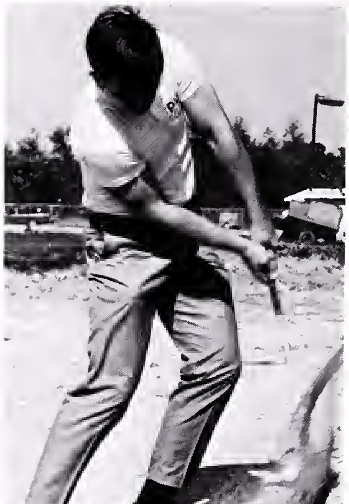
TO FIND . . .
SPORTS

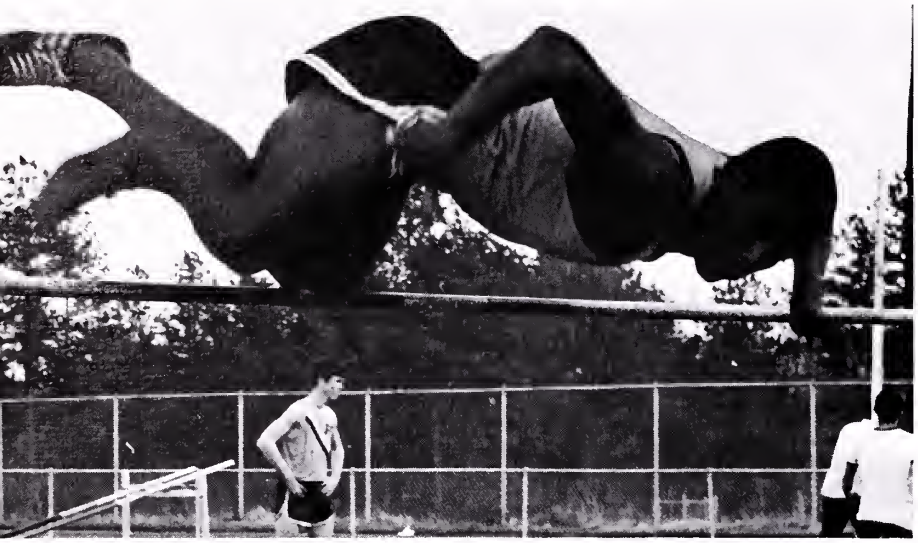
Determination, cooperation, and the ability to function as a team are the constituents of a successful athletic program. Not only may a member profit with resulting victory from unit effort, but also the individual may experience personal satisfaction for his separate contributions. Whether the athlete competes with another team or battles with his own past records, participation in sports adds to the distinction of the individual and school.

On the battlefield at the height of a war were our forefathers, the wearers of the Cockade Hats, searching for the answers to life's many questions and hoping to find their true selves through a terrifying, yet rewarding experience. For the athlete the place "to find" himself may be the football field, the basketball court, or the baseball diamond. The task of finding oneself is left up to the individual, for in this case man can reason only with himself.





Strong Opponents Bring Track Disappointing Season



Phil Simmons proves to be a most serious threat in the high jump event as he clears the standard at the Meadowbrook meet.

With unique form Bob Antozzi displays his ability to put the shot as judge Bobby Tyler awaits his release.

Howard Brown displays great effort as he attempts another PHS record in discus throwing.

Seemingly incapable of mustering an effort sufficient to win, the track squad had a most disappointing season, losing seven meets while winning only one. As with most other sports this year, individuals excelled while the team fared poorly. If individual drive could be transmuted to the team, track at PHS would certainly improve.

The most fascinating aspect of track and field is the breaking of records, surpassing times and distances rather than competitors. Setting a new school record, Howard Brown put the shot a distance of 51' 10". Alton Haynes had an excellent time of 10:46.2 on the two mile run, setting another new record. Another individual who showed ability was Bob Antozzi, whose varied skills at the high and low hurdles, the broad jump, and discus brought a modicum of glory. Other outstanding performances were rendered by Phil Simmons on the 100, 220, and the high jump and Keith Barker on the high and low hurdles, his 100, and 220. Such excellent performances enabled our track team to save face despite its losses.

Exerting their last ounces of strength are Al Haynes and his opponent in the two mile run.

P.H.S.
GOLF TEAM

Coach Bob Budlove confers with Kevan VanLandingham on several aspects concerning the coming golf match.

Booth Represents PHS in State Tournament

Skip Booth and an opposing golfer exemplify the qualities of good sportsmanship as they discuss the situation of the match.

In any team effort the success or failure of each member is proportional to the number of victories or defeats. This is evidenced by the fine season of our golf team which had seven wins and seven losses. Ironically, there was little support from the student body.

A lack of experience was the team's most obvious fault, but captain Skip Booth, the only graduating senior, did much to compensate for this. Being the leading participant on the team, Skip represented our school in the State Golf Tournament in which he ranked high among the leading contenders. Sophomores Craig Parrish and Fred Ende were such great assets that we may, without hesitation, conclude that the golf team will be able to emulate itself next year.

Individuals Excel, Team Fares Well

Frank Scott appears tense as he anticipates the throw from Wave pitcher in an attempt to put out Thomas Dale runner.

Having few returning lettermen, the baseball squad needed enthusiasm and perserverance to make up for its lack of experience. The team had a somewhat mediocre record of eight wins, seven losses, and one tie. However, individual performance engendered an exciting season with Richard Earl's extraordinary skill and Gerald Mitchell's accurate pitching, responsible for the eight victories.

Leading the team in batting were lettermen Stokes Hill with an average of .364 and Richard Earl with a .304 average and five round trippers to his credit. In spite of this fine hitting, the squad had difficulty in scoring because of a lack of consistency at the plate.

One of the team's most outstanding members was Gerald Mitchell, who pitched five wins, quite an achievement in the tough competition of the Central District. Taking over the mound chores next season will be Mitchell's relief, Bill Pate. With a few exceptions, the experienced Varsity squad will return for what will hopefully be a more auspicious season.

Sitting: M. Covington, R. Hines, S. Hill, M. Gwaltney. Kneeling: D. Barney, T. Harrell, L. Pritchett, B. Oakley, R. Earl, M. Bristow, B. Pate. Standing: R. Crowder, B. Meredith, D. Shannon, F. Scott, G. Mitchell.

Possessing a powerful swing, Richard Earl slams in another homerun for the unsinkable Wave at the Huguenot game.

As Stokes Hill approaches the home plate to complete another run, the Manchester catcher hopelessly awaits the arrival of the ball.

Baby Wave Brings Hope for Future

Wave batter Davis Ivey anxiously awaits the curve ball delivered by our own Coach Porach.

Demonstrating marked ability, the Junior Varsity Baseball squad had a .500 season. The four losses were not a true reflection of their strength, as can be seen by Charles Bland's batting average of .519 and Dennis Cole's average of .423. Striking out an average of seven and one-half opponents a game, Ralph Thacker finished the year with a record of four wins and three losses. With showings such as these, the Varsity teams of the future can expect several outstanding newcomers.

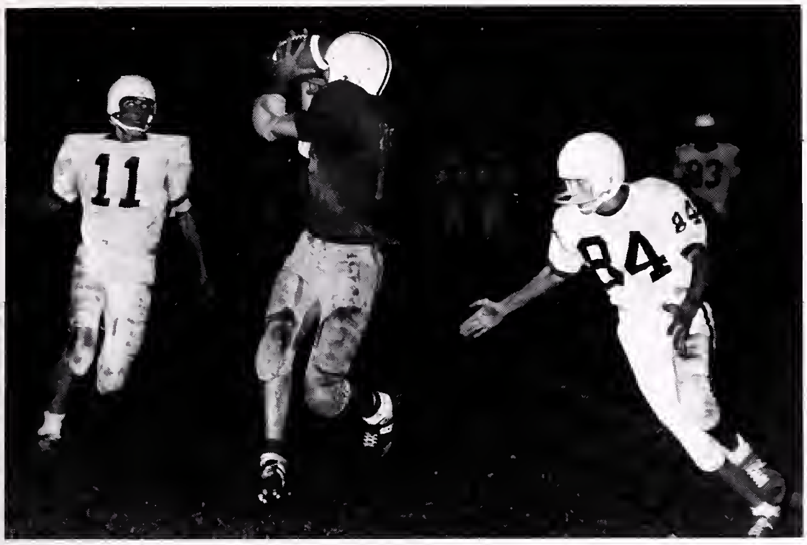
Plowing through a tough defense, Danny Wilkinson goes over for a touchdown against Hopewell.



Making a spectacular reception, Wade Moody runs for yardage as his adversaries attempt to tackle him.

Danny Ray Wilkinson wards off his opponent as he runs for a touchdown.

Closing its 1968 season with a 3-7-0 record, the Petersburg High Crimson Wave football team, under the direction of Coach Bobby Tyler, had its first losing season in 6 years. Its record is a poor representation of the team's earnest determination to win. Even in the last few seconds of a lost cause, these boys hustled with a driving urge to overcome their competitors.

Against Benedictine the Wave showed a good defense but lost because of its opponent's successful punt return. Turning two pass interceptions into touchdowns, our team scored its first victory of the season against Manchester. Petersburg was once again victorious against Meadowbrook through the combined scoring efforts of Donnie Shannon and Danny Wilkinson.

Allowing the Patriots only one touchdown was enough for Patrick Henry to defeat the Wave. However, Donnie Shannon scored, but the extra point was missed leaving Petersburg on the short end. Regardless of the fact that our boys outplayed the Colonials, the scoreboard showed Colonial Heights the victor.

Scoring its first football victory against Petersburg, Prince George defeated the Wave in the fourth quarter with only minutes to go on a sixteen yard field goal. After suffering this defeat, the Wave once more was scoreless when Thomas Dale made two touchdowns. The most disappointing game of the year came against Hopewell, our long time rivals. Down by 27-0 at half because of various mistakes, the Wave came back to score two touchdowns but was firmly beaten.

Peter Santago showed his form as a runner at the Huguenot game in a hard fought battle that saw all the scoring done in the first half. Again the Wave lost. In our final game Lee Davis watched the Wave in action. The offense pounded the Confederate line for three touchdowns, and the defense held Lee Davis scoreless in a victory which closed the season for PHS.

The Colonial ball carrier soon finds that yardage gain is not always obtainable as Wave tackle Adolphus Graves downs his efforts.

An enthusiastic Gary Spence triumphantly signals a touchdown in the Colonial Heights game.

Junior Varsity Betters Record by Drive and Enthusiasm

Enthusiasm compounded by an inexorable drive enabled the Jayvee football squad to gain its first victories since 1965. Several key players, including halfbacks Terry Lufsey and Rufus Honeycutt, along with fullback James Jackson and tackle Jerome Raines provided an impetus to the rest of the team. Although the Jayvees did not have a victorious season, they should be credited with a noteworthy improvement.

In the twentieth century business world there is a constant need for the setting and attaining of various goals. Striving to meet these never ending demands requires the hard work and determination of the individual. However, when one encounters defeat, he must recommence his efforts with renewed eagerness and enthusiasm.

The Cockade Hat, worn by veterans of the War of 1812, reminds us of our forefathers' avid determination "not to yield" to their suppressors. Today we have attempted to overcome many difficulties encountered in our world. The contemporary businessman is constantly confronted with setbacks and disappointments but must now learn to face the reality of a life consisting of both success and failure. Thus determined "not to yield" to the numerous and difficult trials of a fruitful life, one accepts the life-long challenge of striving toward the eternal goal of success.

GOOD GAS SERVICE MAKES WARM FRIENDS

The Petersburg & Hopewell Gas Company thinks of all graduates as potential customers. In the above picture, Peter Alexander and Joyce Russell, Seniors, are examining a Gas Dryer and an Outdoor Gas Light in the Gas Company office. The Gas Company also believes that, as graduates, you can do a great service for the rest of us if you never cease to be students—looking for opportunities and ways to cherish the American system of free enterprise and to improve the American way of life. You can be thankful for free schools in a country where you are free to worship and work and think and talk as you please. In our America you are free to choose the type appliances and the fuel you will wish to use in your homes. This is a part of your heritage from the people who built America.

The Future is pretty largely in your hands. For some of you, it means marriage, homes, family and work, Now. For others of you it means just the beginning of study and hard work in college. Always, all of you must be vigilant and active to combat the evils of socialism, government domination of private industry and all the "isms" that destroy democracy. We depend upon you to do a good job.

Come see the making of power

Vepco's first commercial atomic power station is now under construction in Surry County, Virginia. In the new Information Center overlooking the site, you will see an excellent slide presentation, fascinating exhibits, and a working model of the reactor. (And from the balcony, you can watch them assemble the real thing.) Open 10 AM to 4 PM Monday through Saturday and 1 PM to 6 PM on Sunday. For tour information call 771-3194 in Richmond.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Producing an annual demands the time and talents of many people. To all those who had a part in compiling the '69 Missile, we wish to express our sincere thanks. Special thanks are due to you, the students and faculty of Petersburg High School, who have always supported us with your constant patience and regular subscriptions. To Miss Frances Evans we express thanks for her wise advice and guidance in laying the foundations of this book before her retirement last spring. We also thank Mr. Betts, our devoted principal, for his genuine concern and co-operation throughout the year. Without the faithful support of our area merchants, this book would have been financially impossible. Appreciation is expressed to Mr. John Sheally of The Progress Index for the photographs he so kindly donated. We are extremely grateful to Mr. John Perry, Mr. Jim Ellis, Mr. James Hunter, and the Hunter Publishing Company for their guidance in making our ideas a reality. We truly are indebted to our hard working staff members, especially those who so eagerly volunteered extra hours during hectic deadlines. Gratitude is extended to Mr. Burton Alexander for managing the finances so efficiently and accurately and to Mrs. Mildred Irvine for her diligent work on the class sections. To Mrs. Beverly Donovan, we express a special thanks for her worthy advice and careful eye in proofreading all copy. Our most sincere thanks are reserved for our sponsors, Mrs. Earlene Lampman and Mr. Carlton Tew, who so freely gave of their time and energy without a word of complaint. Their devoted aid and undying confidence in us have made this annual possible. In closing, we would personally like to extend our deepest appreciation to those who offered advice and encouragement to us throughout the year. The 1969 Missile is now completed — our goal has been attained. To all who helped in its production, we thank you.

Kandy and Gail

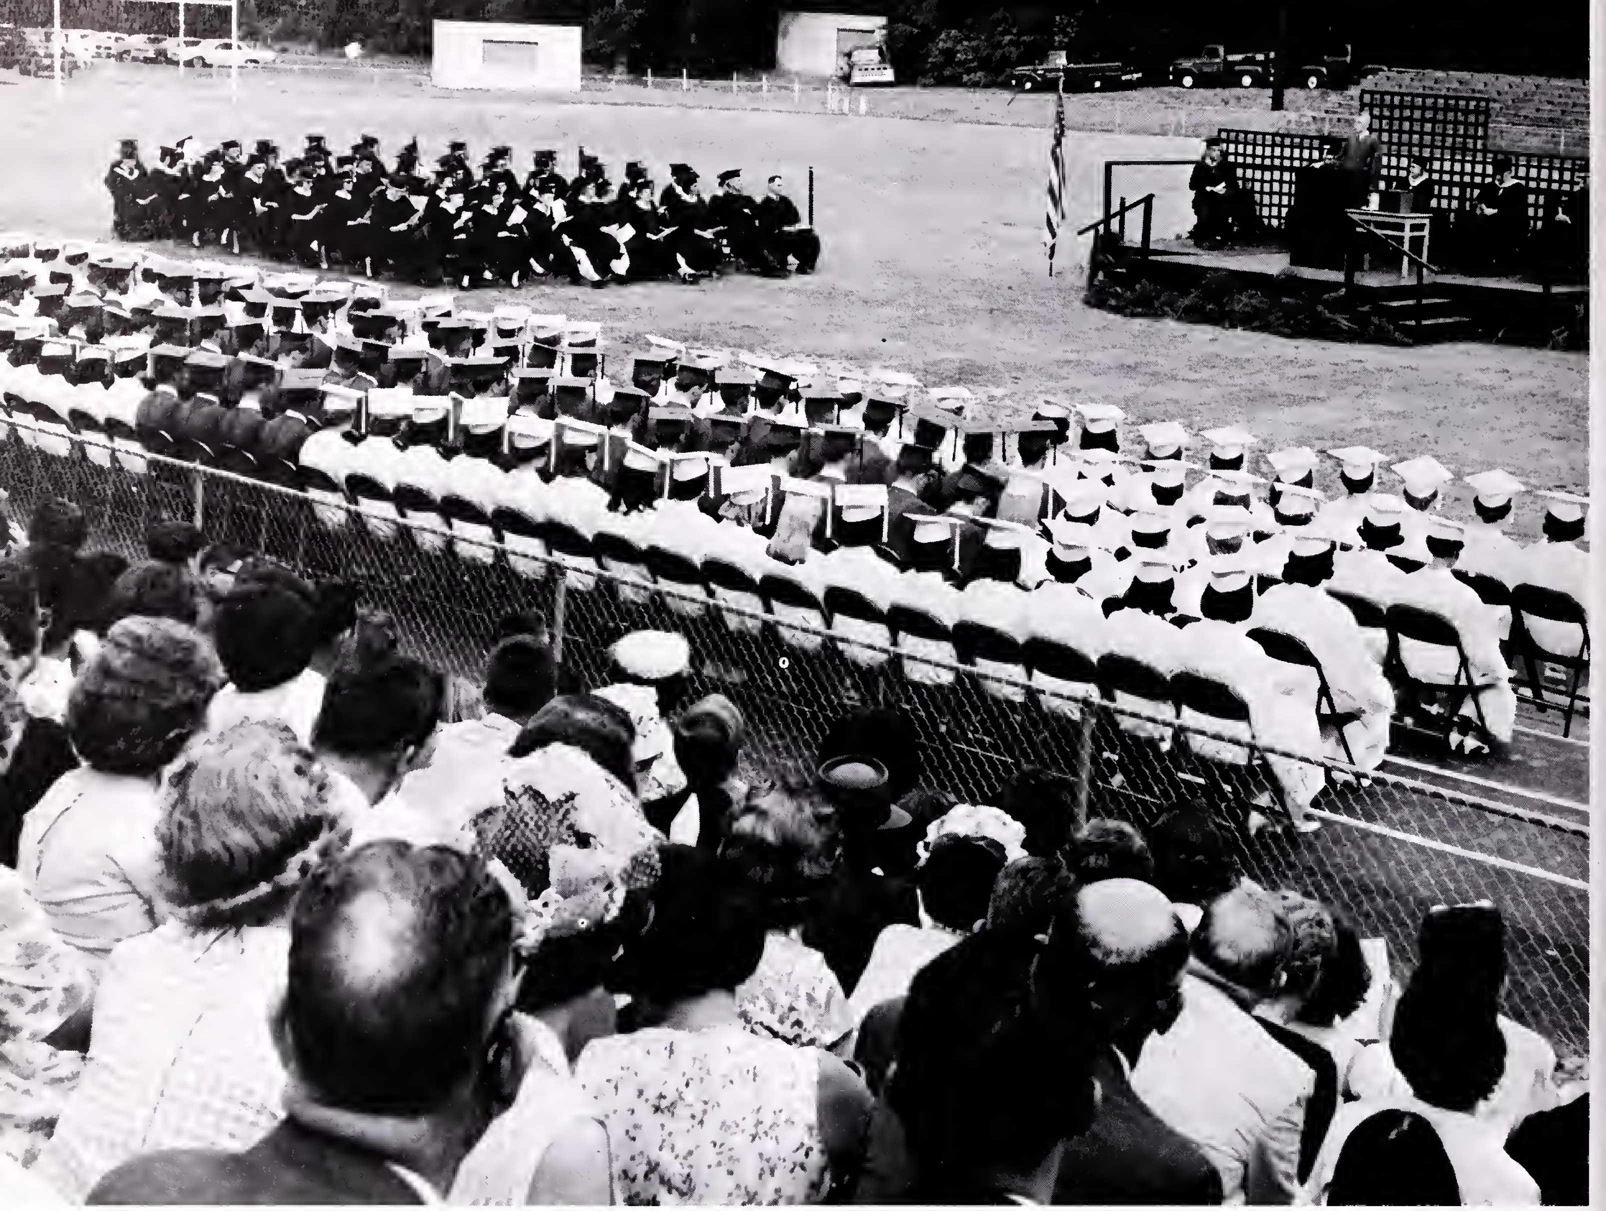
VIET NA
"Enemy Infiltration

Universal Goal—Peace for All Mankind

We have acquired a fine heritage — one of truth, justice and liberty. Yet many of our forefathers had to give up their lives to make a better world for us. However, even today there is still strife to preserve freedom and to create a universal peace. The scene for this generation's major struggle is Viet Nam. Young men are fighting and dying for our nation, our flag, and our future. They want to preserve those ideals for which America was created.

While all cannot be fighters, all can join the fight by avidly supporting our soldiers. All can strive to defeat Communism within our own country as well as in the free world. All can use their privileges and responsibilities of citizenship to their capacities and vote for the most able leaders. All can work for the betterment of society as well as themselves.

We, the class of 1969, will be the leaders of tomorrow. We must meet the demands of progress. We must make the all-important decisions of national leaders. We must fight, and if necessary, die for the freedom we have inherited. We must set out "strong in will, to strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."



Diploma—A Goal Attained

Time has journeyed with days both short and long and the years have drifted until this day when we see before us a graduation ceremony — a salutatory message, a handshake, the presentation of a diploma, a valedictory speech, a benediction, and many farewells. For seniors it is a culmination — the end, and yet the beginning. This is their moment to break with the past and to reach out toward the opportunities provided in the future. Aided by their scholastic and social achievements, these graduates are prepared to face a new world, with new people and new challenges. For some the change will be difficult; for others, easy; some will succeed while still others fail. Yet, the days will pass, all will overcome their fears, and the new environment will become a part of us. And should we return in a few years to "dear ole PHS," we shall find that others have come to replace us and that the determination of man to progress, whether on the road of success or failure, will never die.

Road to Future Holds Challenges to Come

And now, we come to the close of our high school careers. Here we have spent forty-five months of our lives. We have learned many things. We have made many friends. We have worked together for the betterment of our school as well as ourselves. We have had our moments of ecstasy and moroseness. We have met both success and failure. And yet, now the end is upon us. While some eagerly depart, others leave with hesitation and uncertainty for "dear ole PHS" has, indeed, been our home for five years. Even the least sentimental of us realizes that this time can never be recaptured. As we move into the business world or onto a college campus, we will be forced to meet new challenges and conflicts. Having achieved many goals already, we bid farewell to our beloved alma mater with earnest gratitude. With anticipation of the road to the future, we leave Petersburg High School with determination, "strong in will, to strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."
